Fred Lake, New Manager of the Red Sox Ball Team

M'GUIRE IS OUT AS RED SOX MANAGER; LAKE TAKES PLACE

Big Jolt for Fans in Sudden Change of Boston American League Management—Action Only Decided Upon To-day.

Baseball fans got a big surprise to-day when the announcement was made from American League headquarters by President John T. Taylor that Manager Jim McGuire had resigned from the club and he had appointed Fred Lake his successor.

The action of President Taylor in asking for McGuire's resignation has been in the air for some time, but he did not want to take any decisive steps until forced to and to-day he expressed himself and the change of managers took place.

Lake, who takes McGuire's place, assumed his duties this afternoon. President Taylor ordered him to report in his suit and handle the team from now on. If he makes good he is to hold the position next year, but it will all depend on what Lake is able to do during the remainder of the season in regard to his future.

The fans and players have come to like Deacon McGuire and have encouraged him in his work in trying to make a winner in this city, but his failure has been apparent in several directions.

In Lake the team has a young, hustling leader who should reap success as a director of the team's welfare for the rest of the season. He has been acting as scout for President Taylor for the past two years, since coming from Kansas City, where he played for Mickey Finn.

Lake played on a Boston championship team when the Nationals won the pennant in '97, and since then he has been around the circuit picking up diamond knowledge that makes him a valuable man in the place he now occupies.

He went to Syracuse from Boston, being traded for Vic Willis and a bonus, and from there went to Pittsburg, where he helped out Manager Watkins with the Pirates. His association with the Manchester, N. H., Lowell and Lynn, New England League clubs, made him a familiar figure to all local fans and he will hardly be greeted as a stranger to-day when he takes up the reins as manager of the Red Sox.

Lake has the respect and esteem of all professional ball players, as he is known from one end of the circuit to the other, and his natural cleverness as a leader has been displayed in several instances in transfers and deals between clubs and players.

Lake was at the American League office to-day in response to a message from President Taylor to meet him and talk over the situation.

"Hello, Mr. Manager," was the greeting Lake received when Taylor confronted him. "Get into your suit and get on the coaching lines and win the game."

Lake wasted no time in getting out for the grounds and rogged out for his initial appearance before the fans here with the hope of making good at the outset.

Asked for Resignation.

In regard to the resignation of "Deacon" McGuire, President John I. Taylor of the Boston American Club had the following to say:

"I was not pleased with the results of the club under the management of McGuire, and I asked for his resignation today, and it was given.

"Jim and I parted the best of friends. Although he was successful with the team away from home, he didn't seem to be able to make a go of the nine at home. His principal fault was his lack of quick thought and action in critical situations.

"Fred Lake, the old Boston National player, will be the manager for the rest of the season. Whether he retains it in the position next season depends upon the results he achieves the balance of this year's schedule."

Lake to Be New Manager.

Lake has been acting as scout of the Red Sox for two years, and his quick insight in selecting first-class material for the nine led President Taylor to pick him as the man to lead the team.

McGuire has been in charge of the Boston nine since last August, succeeding Hoff, the Illinois baseball man. McGuire was a failure from the start, as while he led the relay the team lost sixteen straight. However, toward the end of the season the team braced, and many fans thought that this would be enough to take him over much better with the team.

This season Manager McGuire has had the best talent to work with ever given a manager. At the beginning of the season at the grounds that if a baseball under the leadership of Jim McGuire of the Red Sox this season he would easily make it a championship nine.

FANS DISAGREE AS TO WISDOM OF LAKE AS LEADER

Following are interviews with well-known Hub fans regarding the change:

Mike Kelley—Fred Lake is undoubtedly one of the best baseball men in the business, and should be able to make a first division team out of the club.

Tommy Mosher—I think the change is just a matter of going from bad to worse. I don't know why Clarence Taylor released Lake, who has never been a success at the head of the team, when there are such good talent as Clarke Griffith, Ned Hanlon and George Stallings running around loose.

Charley Lavis—I don't think that the change is good, but I think they could do better than Lake. I have never thought much of McGuire as a leader. He has been far from popular, and that there would be a change in management has been evident for some time.

T. J. Crowley—I think that Lake will prove a big improvement over McGuire, but I think that President Taylor could do still better if he looked in the proper circles.

M'GUIRE SORRY TO LEAVE; SEES BRIGHT FUTURE FOR TEAM

Deacon Jim McGuire said when seen to-day: "Yes, I am no longer manager of the Red Sox. Mr. Taylor was dissatisfied with the way the team was playing under my direction, and so the only thing I could see was to quit.

"I am extremely sorry to leave Boston, as I can find no fault with the way I have been treated by everybody, but things do not seem to break right with the team, and somebody has got to suffer when that is the case.

"I have the greatest regard for the Red Sox as a team and see great possibilities in its future if handled right.

"I gave my best services to the development of the team and never worked harder to attain results, and am convinced that in another year a higher position could be reached in the pennant race.

"I cannot complain of the way the club has used me in the past and have had free rein up to a few weeks ago, when I disagreed with President Taylor in some deals on, being passed through. That day have been the starting point of Mr. Taylor's dissatisfaction."

SADIE WORTHY PICKED TO WIN RICH FUTURITY

BY ED COGSWELL.

READVILLE RACE TRACK, Aug. 28.—After two days' loafing around the city through the inclement weather, it was with joy that the turfmen gazed out its window this morning and saw the sun once more denoting the resuming of the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville.

The early arrivals at the track were surprised to see how well it had dried out, so that fast time is certain in the three-classics scheduled for this afternoon. With the horses having laid idle forty-eight hours, the course was filled with trainers out working their steeds fast halves and quarters for the stiff battles in store for them down the big line that ends at Lexington.

While the rich $7,000 trotting futurity was the feature event of the day, yet the betting on the quarter stretch was almost entirely on the result of the Narragansett pacing stake for the California money.

"Long Shot" Cox started early in this event, and the followers of this clever New Hampshire reinsman were on hand backing his mount to beat the sterling Copa de Oro, the California wonder.

The most of the betting was at odds of 5 to 10, with Copa de Oro the pick. In some sort of manner this price and circumstance was that the man-to-man wagering was all on this order.

Vendetta, the entry of Knapp McCarthy, was best thought of for the Blue Hill, though it was counted that the local players, Bonnie Way and Ulilan, had a good chance. Lucky luck should happen to flutter their way.

For the rich Futurity was Sadie Worthy against the whole field at even money. The best starters were Rinaldo and The Leading Lady, the Boston delegation almost to a man went down on their chances in securing the victory.

BY DYKE CLARK.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Aug. 28.—There was considerable interest to see if Fred Lake could send the Red Sox to victory against the Browns in the third game of the series and the new manager came in for close inspection all along the line.

The team was just as anxious to score the Brownies for taking that double-header, as Lake desired to make good on his debut as director-general on the ground of the team's warfare.

There were many regrets expressed for faithful Deacon McGuire, who had done his best to bring the team along, but there had been several moves, or, rather, lack of action at the right time which had caused considerable comment and wonder, and under Lake's administration this was not likely to happen, as Fred was keen to all the opportunities opened and was watching for any weak spots the Browns had for us to direct the onslaught there.

At Lake was perfectly familiar with the team's progress, saving picked up some of the promising material on the Red Sox, he was able to jump right in and send things along.

Jim McAleer saw that he had a new foe to fight, and his actions also were aware that in Lake was one who could bring back the hoodoo which the Red Sox had held over the Mound City lads till yesterday, when it was broken, strayed or stolen.

The players desired to show Lake that they were willing to show the best that was in them, and under the circumstances it did not seem possible that the Browns had a look in, with the lively youngsters playing themselves loose.

Old Jack Powell, the hero of many a campaign, and still in the ring, was slated by McAleer to work on the mound, and it was only a question of time when Lake's charges would get on the trail of ancient Jerry, and send him to the tall grass for good.

DYING MAN SHIELDS WOMAN IN SHOOTING

POLICE INVESTIGATE TRAGEDY OF BOARD WALK AT ATLANTIC CITY.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—That the solution of the mystery in the shooting of Charles B. Roberts of Baltimore on the board walk, while he was in the company of Mrs. W. F. G. Williams, a society belle of Baltimore, will disclose a scandal in the most exclusive circles of that city is believed to-day by the police and detectives who are working on the case.

So far both Roberts, who is lying in a dying condition at the hospital, and Mrs. Williams, who is under the surveillance of Detective Wilson at the fashionable Hotel Brighton, have refused to add to their story of last night that a masked robber held up their rolling chair on the board walk and shot Mr. Roberts.

The police believe that Mr. Roberts knows who shot him, but that he will die without disclosing who his assailant was and why he was shot.

Insists She Does Not Know.

That Mrs. Williams knows who the man was, and why he had murderous designs against Roberts, is also suspected by the detectives. She persists in saying she does not know who the man was who did the deed.

"My husband did not shoot Mr. Roberts," she said, and then she added this significant remark:

"I do not know who the man was who fired the shot, but I think that Mr. Roberts recognized him and could tell his story if he recovers consciousness."

Williams is locked in her room in the Marlborough hotel. To-day the detectives, headed Jesse Jackson, the colored man running the chair in which Roberts and Mrs. Williams were riding, have been busy. Two places, to-day's third, are mentioned as a witness.

Mrs. Roberts, wife of the dying financier, arrived here to-day from Massachusetts, and since her arrival she has been constantly at the bedside of her husband.

Jealousy the Motive?

The police learned to-day that a big touring car bearing a Maryland license register and for which a New Jersey license had been issued the day before the shooting was seen traveling in the direction of Baltimore late last night.

While the stories told by Roberts, Mrs. Williams and Jackson, the man who was pushing the covered chair in which the couple was seated at the time of the shooting agree, the police and detectives to-day think that jealousy and ragg prompted the deed, and that the gunner's assistant was far from being an ordinary highwayman.

Jackson, the chairman, described what he saw as well as frigid would permit him, but the detectives who are investigating the case and have been for more than twelve hours, think Roberts and the woman know more about the shooting and what led to it than they have told.

Roberts and Mrs. Williams were being wheeled along the board walk at a late hour, the famous walk was deserted, for a rain was falling and a strong wind was blowing; their chair was awaited in rubber coverlids.

In the glare of the electric light a man, declared to have been masked, stepped to the chair and pulling open curtains ordered Roberts to come out. Unaccountably, the police think, Roberts complied. At the same moment he was shot and it is thought mortally wounded.

May Know Assailant.

Dispatches from Baltimore to-day quote her husband as saying he believed his wife was visiting her sister, Miss Nannie Hoen, of Beverly Farms, near Boston. He declared Roberts was his most intimate friend. Other than this Mr. Williams refused to comment on the tragic affair.

MELBOURNE AWAITS BIG U. S. FLEET

Special Cable to Boston American.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 28.—This city is on the eve of what will likely prove the most memorable event in its history—the enjoinment of the American battleship fleet. A wireless received Friday night, according to the difference in time) states that the fleet passed Wilson's Promontory in the evening. This promontory is 125 miles from the mouth of the Melbourne harbor, and makes it apparent that the fleet will arrive on schedule time. The message stated that the ships were traveling in formation, and that the weather was good and the sea running smooth.

One hundred thousand visitors are expected in Melbourne to-day to take part in the festivities which will mark the arrangement of the American sailors. The Melbourne citizens will attempt to rival the demonstration at Sydney.

WOMAN BURNED BY EXPLOSION

Miss Nellie Robinson, a lodging house keeper, No. 129 Concord street, suffered severe, but not dangerous burns to-day when naphtha exploded. Miss Robinson was cleaning the carpet in a room on the third floor of the house with the fluid.

She had occasion to light a match, and a spark fell upon the carpet, which was damp with naphtha. The air was filled with the gas of the naphtha. An explosion followed, blowing out the front window of the room.

Miss Robinson's face and hands were badly blistered and her hair singed, but she fought the fire unassisted with rugs, and when the department came the fire had been extinguished. A physician was summoned and dressed the woman's burns. The damage is slight.

NEUMAN CONFIDENT, SAYS, 'I'LL MAKE GOOD'

GREAT INTEREST AROUSED IN ATTEMPT OF MIND READER TO ACCOMPLISH FEAT.

Can Neuman Equal Bishop's Performance?

The AMERICAN does not say that Neuman can find the article hidden by the committee of investigators. Neuman says he can find the article. Nobody but the members of the committee know where it has been hidden. Nobody connected with the AMERICAN has any information concerning the matter. If Neuman finds the article the AMERICAN will give him full credit. If he fails to find it the AMERICAN will publish all the facts. If the committee catches him in any act of trickery he will be promptly exposed by this newspaper.

Neuman has mystified many psychic experts in the past. He has done things equalled only by the famous Washington Irving Bishop. This feat, if it is accomplished, will be greater than any Bishop ever performed. The question is: CAN NEUMAN DO IT?

Can Neuman do it?

Can he drive through the streets of Boston, blindfolded, and find any article hidden by a committee of Boston men?

These questions are being asked by all Boston today. Neuman has declared that he will perform the greatest feat of mind reading ever undertaken in this city. The proposition is so startling that few believe Neuman can accomplish all that he promises.

But he declares he can. He is absolutely confident.

He will try to-morrow. At 12:30 o'clock Neuman, blindfolded, will step into the box of a carriage, behind which will be three prominent Boston men. He will drive through the crowded streets of the city. He declares he will do so without accident, and that he will lead the committee to the place they have selected and find the unknown articles previously hidden by the committee.

This is Neuman's own promise. If he does as he says he will, he will be given full credit by the BOSTON AMERICAN. If he does not, all of the facts will be published. It is up to the committee to determine whether he performs faithfully all that he is undertaking.

Committee to Watch Him.

Here is the committee:

WILLIAM A. BARNES, instructor in psychology.

JAMES P. MAGENIS, lawyer and member of the Boston School Committee.

DR. GEORGE V. BERHLER, physician.

In this committee the public has full confidence. They are men who would be able to see through a sham. They are men whom the public would expose a sham if they saw it. It is up to this committee to see if Neuman makes good. The committee has evinced great interest in the undertaking. The members say they are skeptical, but they will wait and see.

Here is what Neuman must do.

He must know absolutely nothing about what the committee has selected as the article that has been hidden.

He must have not the slightest inkling of where it has been placed.

He must be thoroughly blindfolded when he drives the committee to that place and finds the article.

Drives Team With Eyes Closed.

Think what that means.

It is quite a task, to begin with, to drive a team through the crowded streets of Boston with the eyes open. Neuman says he will do it with his eyes shut.

The committee is not restricted as to the nature of the thing hidden. It can select any one of the myriad of articles that encumber the earth. That means that the committee can conceal anything material that exists. Neuman declares that he will divine just what this article is.

The committee may hide the thing any place in Boston. Neuman agrees to find it, no matter where it is. There are millions of hiding places in Boston. There are thousands of hiding places in every block. There are hundreds of hiding places in every square foot.

Neuman will neither know what is hidden nor where it is hidden.

This is a remarkable claim and it is believed that an immense throng will be on hand when Neuman, blindfolded, mounts his carriage at 12:30 o'clock to-morrow noon in front of the BOSTON AMERICAN office and sets out to find the article.

Restrictions by Neuman.

There are only two restrictions imposed by Neuman. He says that the article must not be hidden in a safe or in the clothing of any person. These restrictions are so immaterial that the committee, recognizing the obvious cause of them, accepts them without qualms. Their existence will not in the slightest deteriorate the feat if Neuman performs it.

Twenty-two years ago Washington Irving Bishop, rated as the world's greatest mind reader, normally performed such a feat in the presence and to the satisfaction of a confident committee of scientists. He won a wager of $2,500. The feat has stood the test of all time and all investigation.

Now comes Professor Neuman. He says that he cannot only duplicate that feat but that he can beat it. Bishop held the wrist of one of the members of the London, England, committee, and by this means got the article hidden in the box of investigators.

"I will go farther than that," Neuman says to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I will have no visible contact with any person. The committee shall select the article and hide it. I will drive then blindfolded to it and get the article. I will not touch or speak to a member of the committee. I don't care if fifty grand articles are hidden with it or where it is hidden. I shall find it.

"I am glad a committee has been chosen in whom the public has full confidence. I want to perform this feat in a way to inspire that confidence. It actually does, and done on the square, as you call it (Neuman is a Russian).

"I have the utmost confidence. I shall do it."

Neuman has done some feats of what he calls mind reading. They are very interesting, but not conclusive. Every night he does some stunt of the kind at the Grand Union hotel, now. He is also to be performing with the "Prince of Spendthrifts." Those feats are trivial beside what he undertakes to do to-morrow. He was challenged to make good his claims. They are so extravagant that they sound like bombast. If he does not fulfill it will be an amazing feat. The public will wait and see.

Lay Wagers on His Feat.

Last night bets were freely made in the South End that Neuman would not do what he promises. At the hotel where Neuman is stopping three wagers of 5 to 1 and one of 10 to 1 were made that he would not fulfill all he claims. Neuman himself did not bet—he does not countenance betting.

"I shall do it," was his simple, confident prediction.

The skeptics said that even if he did appear to do what he claims he will do it would be a trick. It is up to the committee selected to determine not that he be actually performs the physical part of it, but that there is no trickery about it—simply a feat of mind reading.

Can Neuman do it?

He will try. It will happen at 12:30 o'clock to-morrow noon, where everybody can see for himself and judge for himself. Neuman will start from the BOSTON AMERICAN office, No. 80 Summer street, at that time.

HUNDREDS WAGERED IN THE SOUTH END ON NEUMAN'S ATTEMPT

The question of whether Professor Neuman could perform the feat he has agreed to do in Boston to-morrow has turned out to be one of the liveliest betting propositions the South End has experienced for a long time.

Neuman is a mind reader who is appearing at the Grand Opera House in Washington street, near Dover, with the "Prince of Spendthrifts." He does some stunts which are classed as feats of mental telepathy, and they are very interesting. He is stopping in the South End, at the Grand Union Hotel, and has made many acquaintances in that section. His "strike" as the spectators call him, has become noised many. Neuman himself stoutly maintains that the only way he finds the best articles is by a process of mind reading.

Whether this be so or not, nobody has been able to discover just how he does it.

When he made the assertion, however, that he would permit a committee of men who would only not stand for it, but would be able to discern one, to go and hide any article which that committee might select in any place the committee might secretly decide not he would drive, blindfolded, to the place and find the article—then those who had witnessed his performance began to bet that he would not make good.

Neuman has a following, however, and the bets were taken. Those who took Neuman's end of it based their faith upon the conclusion that he would not stake his professional reputation—which he has done—on such an unnecessary hazard, unless he was confident he could "make good." They realized that if Neuman did not "make good" he could go back to his hotel render in professional obscurity. Those bets usually got down to one and in one case ten to one—for their money! These bets were recorded in the Grand Union hotel cafes.

This morning a well known sporting man offered to bet $1,000 to $500 that Neuman would not "make good." He declared his conviction that it was all a trick. He said that he had won a similar wager several years ago on a trick and that he could perform a certain mind reading act. The bet was taken, nevertheless.

How Neuman Will Drive Blindfolded Through Streets of Boston To-morrow

Test to Be Careful and Fair, Says Committee

This committee has concealed an object within the limits of the City of Boston, under a challenge by Professor Neuman to find it through what he says is his ability to read the minds of others.

The committee proposes to make a fair and careful test of the powers claimed by Professor Neuman. The contest is entirely under the control of the committee. If Neuman is found to be a sham, he will be exposed by this committee.

Satisfaction

WHEN you burn an electric lamp you generally want most of the light sidewise and downward. Then you must turn part of the light rays, that otherwise would be lost in the upward direction, downward where they will be most useful.

This can be done by reflection and refraction of the upward rays. Also it can be done by using proper judgment in determining the position in which the lamp itself is placed.

Some reflectors concentrate the light, others diffuse it. The whole matter of light distribution and brilliancy has become a science in itself—it is called Illuminating Engineering.

We believe it to be of such great importance to our customers that we are organizing a department to offer advice and ideas to Edison Light patrons free of charge.

The department can be used either to get more light than previously at the same cost or to reduce the bills with the present amount of illumination.

PROCTER & GAMBLE (P&G) NAPHTHA SOAP

This Is The Way To Wash

With P. & G. Naphtha Soap. Try it, next washday.

WHITE CLOTHES:—Dip each piece in lukewarm water. Rub soap on the soiled parts and roll up. Pack rolls in a tub and cover with lukewarm (not hot) water. Let them soak half an hour or longer. Fill a tub half full of lukewarm (not hot) water; unroll each piece and rub soiled parts on the washboard, using fresh soap. The dirt will come out with little or no rubbing. Rinse in two warm waters and blue in a third cooler water. Excepting in cases of sickness, clothes need not be boiled. Hang them up to dry in sunshine and fresh air.

Isn't this simpler and easier and better than your present method? And wouldn't it be a good idea to try P.&G. Naphtha Soap and see if it really is as effective as we say it is?

The experiment costs little—a five cent cake is ample for a week's washing.

INITIATE SEVEN IN IRISH CLUB

Members of the County Fermanagh Club of this city are to-day congratulating themselves on its splendid outing for the last night at an enthusiastic meeting in Neuman's Hall, Columbus avenue, seven new members were initiated and a most enjoyable entertainment followed, in which there were songs and Irish dances, as well as several bright impromptu speeches.

The club voted the payment of the affiliation fee for the coming season, and by motion the regular time of meeting was changed to the fourth Sunday of the month. Refreshments were served after the business of the meeting had been transacted and A. O. Gallagher made a most admirable toastmaster.

"ENGAGED? OH, NO," SAYS FAIR HATTIE

Miss Forsythe, Who Figured in Thaw Trial, Enjoying Life at Providence.

WEARS SPARKLING RING

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 28.—Hattie Forsythe, the actress, is here enjoying the delights of Rhinebrian, and not for two weeks as the guest of her mother. Free from the cares of theatrical work, she is taking the time of her life, lounging, boating and tennis playing, with an occasional dip in the surf at Newport's famous bathing beach.

Hattie has been reported as being engaged to young Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., the wealthy Philadelphian, and son of the famed banker and financier of the same name.

Miss Forsythe neither denies or affirms the report. She also refuses to tell why she wears a 3½ carat diamond ring on her engagement finger.

"Engaged to Mr. Drexel? Mercy no!" said the actress' mother to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. And then came the smile. "I am not flattered by the report, either," she added, "except Drexel is a very nice fellow.

"I'm fond of him, and I know he's fond of me, too. I do not know that any of his friends has ordered any serious objection to me, but if I did know it I should surely resent it.

"Mr. Drexel entertained me lavishly during the ten days I stopped in New York after my return from abroad. He lavished attentions upon me. I would consider a proposal from Mr. Drexel should he make it—which he would. But I would want some time to think it over. I don't believe in hasty marriages. I don't know. I think we are admirably suited to each other.

"But," and Miss Forsythe looked really serious, "I should not marry any man unless I loved him."

WIFE WILLING TO MAKE PEACE WITH EARLE

Artist's Plea for a Reconciliation Said to Have Met with Favor.

COUNTRY FOLK AROUSED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

MONROE, N. Y., Aug. 28.—A report current in the village early to-day that Ferdinand Pinney Earle and his affinity wife had returned to their home on the mountain to renew investigation to be near Nature. The Earles have not returned, but are expected back to-day.

At the present time, Earle, his wife and his wife's family are at the Powell farm at Highland Falls, where the artist is trying to persuade his wife to kiss and make up. There appears to be little doubt that Mrs. Earle is willing to forgive her husband for beating her. In fact, it was not she, but her mother, who took the initial steps looking to the arrest of the accomplished couple.

It was well toward midnight last night when Earle reached the farmhouse. His wife and her family had retired, but were called and a council was held. Earle was penitent and pleading. If the expected reconciliation is affected it is not likely that Earl and his wife will remain long in the vicinity of Monroe. The people of this section have enough of him.

There is a curious crowd gathered about this country place in momentary expectation of the arrival of the family from the Powell farm. Justice Attorney Thomas F. Rogers of Middletown, who was at Goshen yesterday, is not certain that the picturesque artist will find it as easy as he thinks to have dropped the charges against him.

"The complaint has been sworn to, the warrant issued and Earle arrested and held," Mr. Rogers said, "and he will not succeed by patting things up with his wife."

The October Grand Jury will get a fair chance at this affinity business if I can serve the nurse who made the charges with a subpoena.

"If this woman has been abused, as charged, I shall present the case to the Grand Jury for what it is worth. Frankly I think Orange County would be better off without the entire Earle family."

COUNT TOLSTOI TO-DAY ROUNDS OUT 80 YEARS

Famous Russian Philosopher Honored in Many Countries on His Birthday.

IS NOW SERIOUSLY ILL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—This is the eightieth birthday of Count Leo Tolstoi, the world's most widely known reformer and man of letters. Although the old Count, now a prisoner in his own home, may be mortal, at his home, Iasnaya Polyana, in the province of Tula, near Moscow, Russia, declared against a world-wide celebration of his birthday, which his friends and followers had planned, it will nevertheless be observed in many countries.

Count Tolstoi has been a dominant figure in the literature of the world for half a century. Flattery rendered to the mind the genius of Shakespeare with the quiet fervor of a believing seer. He has followers by the tens of thousands in every civilized country on the globe. Perhaps no man in the history of the world has made so distinct impression on humanity by his writings.

BABY BOY HAD ITCHING HUMOR

Which Broke Out in Different Places —Nothing Would Help Him— Mother Almost in Despair—Skin Quickly Healed Without a Scar and Trouble Has Never Returned

SINCE USING CUTICURA MOTHER GIVES IT PRAISE

"Several months ago, my little boy, now two and a half years old, began to break out with itching sores. I began to doctor him, and as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. One evening I read a testimonial from a lady who had cured her little boy with Cuticura, and began to use the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and they are surely great. I shall always have them in the house, handy, and shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering like wise. I cannot give them too much praise." Mrs. William Geeding, 19 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

ITCHING TORMENTS

From little patches of eczema, tetter, milk crust, pimples, etc., on the skin, scalp, or hands of infants, children, or adults and worst humors, when all specifics fail, in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure, assisted, when necessary, by mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent, Cuticura Remedies are guaranteed absolutely pure.

RECOVER 16 BODIES IN AUGUSTA FLOOD

AT LEAST 25 LIVES BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN LOST IN GEORGIA CITY.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 28.—At noon today sixteen bodies, victims of the most horrible flood in the history of Augusta, had been recovered. They included five whites and eleven negroes.

Two of the white dead are Harry Carr and Robert Lee Belcher, both bookkeepers for the Nixon Grocery Company. They were drowned Wednesday night together. Several bodies of negroes were found on Fenwick street lying all in one heap. It was only this morning that the work of searching for dead bodies could be begun and the harvest of the first few hours inflicted that the list must reach over twenty-five. A majority of the victims are negroes.

The city will be without light, water, telephone and trolley service for at least another twenty-four hours, and when the water is turned into the mains it will be in very meagre volume, the main pump having been put out of commission. Offers of suitable aid have been coming in to Mayor Dunbar over the telegraph wires since they have been restored. He has not replied to any of these, but in conversation with a Hearst News Service reporter said the city would need outside help for the poor people who will be thrown out of work by the stoppage of all the other industries, which almost without exception received their power from the broken canal.

Train service has not yet been resumed except over the Georgia railroad.

CAPTAIN DYER DEFENDS HUBBARD IN LAND CASE

REPLIES TO CHARGES OF FINANCE COMMISSION REGARDING TRANSACTIONS.

Captain William H. Dyer, claim agent of the police department for the city of Boston, came to the defence of his brother-in-law, H. W. Hubbard, who is criticised by the Finance Commission for his relation to land transactions while acting as a realty expert for the municipality. The commission says that Mr. Hubbard has made more than $12,000 on certain transactions which it describes. It says in beginning its report:

"The investigations of the Finance Commission have disclosed the fact that the interests of the city have not been properly protected in many of the real estate transactions. The purchase of land on Codman street for sewage disposal purposes, at Savin Hill for schoolhouse purposes, and at Mount Hope for park purposes, and the attempted purchase at exorbitant prices of land for the Dissen Hospital and for Evergreen Cemetery, are notable instances.

"The commission has recently discovered a situation as dangerous to the city as those already reported, in connection with land purchases. It is involved in the employment of a realty expert whose private interests are adverse to those of the city."

Transactions Criticised.

The commission proceeds to criticise transactions by Mr. Hubbard while he was employed as a city real estate expert since 1900 and has received from it fees amounting to $5,315. The Finance Commission says in concluding its criticism of some of the transactions of this expert:

"The commission recommends that the law department be instructed to bring suit to test the question of liability, and if it should appear that there is any doubt that the Legislature should be asked to remedy the defect."

Captain Dyer is named in the commission's report as a "straw man" in some of the realty transactions, and the Finance Commission censures, and to-day he said to the BOSTON AMERICAN:

"Dealings Always Honorable."

"I do not know anything about the property on Alexander street. To be sure, I have signed papers for my brother-in-law, Henry W. Hubbard, and I have always had every confidence in him, and I do not for a minute question the contents of the papers that I have signed. Mr. Hubbard's dealings have always been honorable. I do not know anything about the house you speak of. As I invested no money in the property, I got no money from it."

Captain Dyer has been in the police department for thirty-six years and thirty, one of them have been spent in the claim department. The Finance Commission in its communication to Mayor Hibbard says that while Mr. Hubbard was acting as a realty expert for the city in appraising damages resulting from the abolition of the Dudley street grade crossing, he made big profits personally from transactions in property near estates upon which he estimated possible damages. The commission says that he estimated damages upon the estates numbered 3, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 16 Alexander street, and that he owned Nos. 4 and 7, one title being in the name of Jane S. White, his father-in-law. He had paid, it is said, $7,500 for each, which was $100 less than their assessed value. The commission says that the very time that he estimated the value of No. 5 and No. 6 at $5,000 he says that he had personally bought No. 4 and No. 7 for $5,000 each. While in one case he made three estimates he bought No. 6 at exactly $4,025, only $975 less than his estimate and No. 4 January 22, 1907, for $4,000, $1,000 less than his estimate, taking title to both in the name of a third person, whom he describes as "straw man."

Must Submit Estimates.

Following the disclosures by the Finance Commission concerning the Dudley street and other land takings, Mayor Hibbard today announced that in all future land purchases by the city during his administration bids must be submitted by the land owners where possible. Tals will work all right if they can be purchased for playgrounds, schools, etc. In cases such as Dudley street, where bids cannot be made as to land taken, the land owners must submit estimates of the value of their property.

The Mayor also declared that he would submit to next year's Legislature a bill to make it illegal for an agent of the city to be interested, directly or indirectly, in the ownership of land which he purchases for the city.

OCTOPUS DIVES UNDER WARSHIP IN GREAT TEST

Remarkable Submarine Feats Conducted in Secrecy at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 28.—What is declared to be the greatest submarine diving test ever held has just come to light at the navy yard, the vessel which performed it being the Octopus. The tests were performed in secret and consisted of fifteen dives in one month—the very alternate day and two of them were dives beneath a war vessel, the sub-marine coming up on the other side.

Secrecy was maintained for government war purposes. The tests were had at Newport, where the Octopus has lain for the past month or more. They came off when no observers were present.

The most interesting and valuable of the dives were those when the little craft was shot under the war vessels. This was especially apt test, for if the sub-marine can do the feat successfully, without disarray before it plunges, its value is considered proved.

It is said that can do it, and do it without any question, whenever called upon. It could plunge beneath a battleship in time of war, discharge a torpedo into its hull through a surface which is thinly protected, rise to the surface at the proper time and place and escape.

Last week it was learned to-day, the Octopus steamed out to where the second cruiser was anchored in Narragansett Bay, dove under her keel with plenty of margin to spare, and came up at a safe distance on the other side.

The second test of the same kind was made yesterday, when the Octopus again steamed safely under the Boston's keel lightship and came up on the Rhode Island side of what was lagooning.

For these tests, which are extremely hazardous, each man of the submarine gets $1 extra pay and an additional reward of $15. They take their lives in their hands at every such descent.

BANDIT SHOT BY POLICEMAN MAKES ESCAPE

Tumbled from Bicycle by Bullet, but He Disappears in the Darkness at Swampscott.

Special Officer L. W. Pickard fired on and, he believes, wounded a bandit shortly after midnight in the richest residential section of Swampscott.

The outlaw was doing on a bicycle, and when ordered to halt by this policeman rode the harder. Pickard fired, the man uttered an outcry and fell from the bicycle. While the policeman was running to arrest him the man arose and fled, disappearing in the darkness.

The Swampscott police force was alarmed and searched everywhere for the man during the night. To-day the search is being continued.

Officer Pickard has been on special patrol duty in the residential part of Swampscott ever since the night when Policeman William Birch was shot by bandits and the residence of Howard Lewis broken into and robbed of $200 or $300 in cash.

While the policeman was patrolling along the front of this fine residence at Phillips and Humphrey streets, Swampscott, at about 1 o'clock he saw a man come along the latter street from the direction of Lynn.

As alley or driveway passes through the Lewis grounds and connects with Humphrey street and this is the man turned his wheel. The officer moved stealthily to where he could get a better view and he saw the man come out in the shadow of the shrubbery.

Turning away from the stealthily movements of the man that he was a lawbreaker, Pickard stepped out.

"Stop! Stand where you are!"

In an instant the bandit stopped on his wheel, and turning, started to pedal to Humphrey street.

"Stop, or I'll shoot!" cried Pickard.

The man pedaled faster than before, turning toward Swampscott. Pursuing the man, and while yet more than thirty feet distant, Pickard fired.

The outlaw made an outcry and fell from his wheel. As Pickard, running rapidly, approached him, he arose and disappeared in the darkness. As he fell from his bicycle the revolver slid to the side of the road.

In a moment the whole neighborhood was aroused, and police headquarters was notified. Other policemen soon came and joined with Pickard in the search.

The bandit's wheel was taken to the police station, but the search was continued. To-day the force is still hunting for some trace of the man.

SEIZE MAN IN BOSTON FOR BLACK HAND PLOT

Lewis Muzzey, said by the Federal authorities to be concerned in a "Black Hand plot" to extort money from William H. Pitman of Lacadia, N. H., who was fatally shot at death, is a prisoner in Boston under $3,000 bonds and will probably be turned over to New Hampshire officers after his hearing here on indictment charges on Wednesday next.

A fugitive from the law since May last he was arrested to-day by Deputy United States Marshal Rubi in a paint shop in the North End. He has been indicted by the Federal grand jury at Littleton, N. H., on charges of sending a threatening letter through the mails and of attempting to blackmail. In May Pitman received a letter reading:

"If you are not to show this letter to no one and I am the agent of the Black Hand order and you have read about it of course and what they do. If you do not comply with their wishes and if you tell any officer of the law you would not live a year as we have three agents in your city and now what we want you to do is to let us have $1000 and we want it in $5, $10 and $20 bills and you put it in an old newspaper and take it down in front of the Ewalu Inn what was formerly the Bay View Hotel. Throw it over the bank towards the lake and be sure you do not tell any officer. If you do you will not live to get down there with it as our agents will be there to watch and they have rifles which shoot a good way. You owe it to have it there at 11.30 a. m. May 27 and inside of six days you will have your money back with five percent interest. If you fail to send the money or tell anyone about this letter you will not live a year, some of your family will not. Per order of the BLACK HAND."

Pitman showed this letter to the authorities and Muzzey and Burton E. Emery were arrested when the $500 Murray cash bail and fled. The New Hampshire authorities assert that he was in Massachusetts and after the Federal indictments were returned mailed him and Emery asked officers in Boston to run him down. Marshal Rubi went to Islington, Mass., and got a clew to Muzzey's where-abouts which led to his arrest in Boston. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes to-day and held for further hearing. Emery is said to be still in jail in New Hampshire.

EXPRESSMAN FINED IN LIQUOR CASE

Judge Ainy, in the Cambridge District Court to-day, fined James Yori, a Mount Auburn expressman, $50 on his conviction of illegal transportation of liquor. Patrolmen Wynnn and Harrington caught Yori in the act in a case of ale in the Mount Auburn district. Yori was given until September 4 to pay the fine.

BOSS BRAYTON SHELVED BY BIG CHIEFS

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 28.—"Boss" Brayton was thrown down by the Taft campaign manager, politicians say, when Henry F. Lippitt was appointed finance committeeman for Rhode Island. The appointment was made by Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican National Committee, and is the result of the latter's conference at the Hotel Touraine in Boston with party leaders in New England. Lippitt will have entire charge of the financial end of the presidential campaign in this State. It is believed that he was suggested by Senator Aldrich, who hitherto has used "Boss" Brayton for most of the big party work here. Brayton has always handled campaign funds.

General Brayton had a talk with Chairman Hitchcock at the Touraine in Boston and it is said he was present at the conference on the Rhode Island situation when Lippitt was picked as the manager man. Other Rhode Island men who took part in the conference were Secretary Nathan M. Wright and Chairman George R. Lawton of the State Committee.

It is believed that Brayton was diplomatically told he could not have the job and that weeks ago Senator Aldrich picked Lippitt for the place with the approval of Senator Wetmore.

If Brayton has been shelved by Aldrich, it may mean a great fight in the State in 1910 when the assembly which will elect Aldrich or a successor to the United States Senate is to be chosen. Politicians are wondering if Brayton, "thrown down," will be a thorn in the side of the Republican organization in the next presidential fight, or if he will be found opposed to the re-election of Aldrich two years hence.

DEATH CALLS WELL-KNOWN STAGE STAR

LYNNFIELD, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Margaret Daly Vokes, wife of Harry Vokes, of Ward and Vokes, and one of the Daly family of actors, is dead at the home of "Hap" Ward, aged thirty-eight years.

Mrs. Vokes had been ailing for about a year, her illness preventing her from touring with the Ward and Vokes company, which last night played at Worcester, not knowing of her death. Like her brothers and sisters, she went on the stage while still a child, early making herself popular in character and dance. Her brother, Dan Daly, died three years ago last March. The surviving members of the family are Captain William Daly, Elizabeth Daly and Mrs. Lucy Daly Ward. Mrs. Vokes leaves no children.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 9 at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Revere. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

HAINS BROTHERS ARE HELD WITHOUT BAIL

TO AWAIT ACTION OF SPECIAL GRAND JURY. CAPTAIN IN COURT WITHOUT UNIFORM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Captain Peter Conover Hains of the United States army, slayer of William E. Annis, and T. Jenkins Hains, his artist brother, charged with being accessory to the murder, were arraigned for a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Gilroy in Long Island City today and held without bail to await the action of the grand jury. The two brothers, handcuffed to a deputy sheriff, were taken from the Queens County jail to the Fifth Street Police Court, where Magistrate Gilroy was sitting. Assistant District Attorney Harris was in court to prosecute them and they were defended by Lawyers McIntyre and Young.

A big crowd gathered in front of the building to see them and waited until the hearing was over. Captain Hains had discarded his uniform for civilian attire. He sat in the court room with his head bowed in his hands, while two alienists, Dr. George V. Foster and Dr. William Mason, observed his actions closely.

"Guilty as Brother."

Charles H. Roberts, a member of the Bayside Yacht Club, who discovered the shooting of Annis, told how T. Jenkins Hains flourished a revolver and kept back the men who attempted to prevent the tragedy. After the shooting, the witness testified, T. Jenkins Hains and his brother sat down on an overturned dinghy on the float of the yacht club to await arrest.

"You are guilty as you brother," the witness told T. Jenkins Hains. "You interfered with me when I might have prevented this shooting."

T. Jenkins Hains merely said:

"What could I do? He was my brother. I tried to prevent him from doing this, but I could not."

"Keep quiet, this is my affair," Captain Hains interjected.

Captain Hains had previously ordered T. Jenkins Hains to surrender his revolver before doing so T. Jenkins Hains broke the weapon and emptied the shells. "You will observe, gentlemen," he said to the spectators, "that none of these cartridges have been fired."

Denies Army Fund.

The report that a fund is being raised by officers of the army for the defense of Captain Hains was denied to-day by General Bell, who passed through New York from Washington on his way to see President Roosevelt. General Bell said that no such action would be taken.

The fact that Captain Hains appeared without his uniform to-day caused considerable comment. His lawyers explained, however, that at his previous appearance in court he had worn his uniform because his leave of absence had expired and he thought he would have to report for duty at Fort Hancock. Today they persuaded him to leave his uniform off.

It was learned to-day that all the members of the Hains family have long held a traditional belief that the best way to redress private wrongs was to take the law into their own hands. This was vouched for by a government man who has long known both the Hains brothers and their father. The official said that in his opinion T. Jenkins Hains should long ago have been placed under restraint and that the mental processes of at least one of the brothers amounts to a blood mania.

SAYS JENKINS HAINS "MURDER MAD"; HAD THREATENED OTHERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A prominent department official to-day in discussing the act of Thornton Jenkins Hains previous to the shooting of William E. Annis declared that an attempt would be made to prove the author "murder mad." This official was well acquainted with the facts in connection with the killing of Hannegan by Thornton Hains near Old Point Comfort.

He declared that Thornton Hains had threatened the lives of Admiral Evans and Chas. Lamont, Secretary of War during the Cleveland administration.

This official, who was one of the witnesses of the shooting of Hannegan, had been an intimate friend of the Hains family for years. He said that he had known Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., and Thornton Hains from childhood, and that his personal friendship for the mother and father of the boys would weigh heavily against any appeal for him to become a witness against either of the men now charged with killing Annis.

Says Hains Was Quarrelsome.

But he willingly discussed the case, not to supply material to convict Hains for a crime, but to explain the new, startling line of defence which may be used in this remarkable case to gain the freedom of the prisoner now justly accused with Captain Hains.

"Thornton Hains has been 'Tony' Hains to me since I knew him as a boy," said this department man. "He was a moody youth seeking adventure and quarrelsome. His father was my friend, a man of quiet habit and peaceful habits, a good husband and devoted father, although he was a fighting man for his country's sake.

"When Evans was called to the stand as a witness against Hains in the Hannegan trial, the young man was heard to mumble a curse. And when Hains had been freed from the charge he encountered Evans one day as the latter was entering the navy department and Hains halted abruptly in front of the naval officer.

"'I'll kill you for what you did,' the young man blurted into the teeth of the new fighter, and he seemed to mean every word of it."

Evans Laughed at Thornton.

But Evans has faced bullets as well as angry men and although the action of Hains nonplussed him for a moment he stopped the storm of passion with a sad laugh, and by passing on as if he had not heard a word. You see Evans, too, had known the boys and knew their father, and he loved them for their parents' sake.

"I believe that Thornton Hains should long ago have been placed out of harm's way under moderate restrain. I think that his was the maddened brain that formed the plan and completed the killing of Annis. For a more gentle, soft-mannered boy, a more kindly boy than Peter Hains you could not find from ocean to ocean.

"How do I know that 'Tony' Hains committed the life of Annis? Why that happened just after Hains was acquitted of the killing of Hannegan. He had become imbued with the idea that the old general, his father, would be injured in the army because of the Hannegan affair.

Threatened "Dan" Lamont.

"He talked of such a possibility with many confidants, in whom talks he told of attempts by the Secretary of War and causes General Hains to suffer by loss of rank and happiness. With a view, Hains said, of compelling the father to resign and retire to civil life.

"It was after a night of bad affairs that Tony hit upon the idea of killing Lamont. When he sauntered carelessly into the office he was admitted without question in the presence of the secretary. Whether he intended to kill Lamont then I do not pretend to know, but after a few minutes' conversation regarding his father and his supposed injuries, young Hains arose and declared that he would kill Lamont if there was no slighter thing done to cause the older Hains trouble."

WHAT IS IRISH BEAUTY? MACK TO GIVE VIEWS

Photos of Fair Colleens Still Coming for Honors in Great Contest.

BACHELORS ON COMMITTEE

Dozens of photographs of beautiful young Boston women are being received by every mail at the BOSTON AMERICAN office for the AMERICAN'S contest to determine the most beautiful Celtic girl in the Hub, which will close next Tuesday at 6 p. m.

Scores of these pictures will be published in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Also the SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish the names of the committee which will decide the contest, and full details of the big theatre party which the AMERICAN is going to give to all the contestants.

But this isn't all.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN is going to do something else—and listen attentively, girls, because every woman in Greater Boston will be interested in it!

It will grind Andrew Mack's own estimate of what real Irish beauty consists, and everybody will agree that Mr. Mack is well qualified to discuss the subject. His statement will be in detail, and every woman will want to read it.

Committee of Bachelors.

The committee to decide the contest will be made up of bachelors—representatives of various Boston divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. There will be absolutely no favoritism. The contest will be decided strictly on its merits, and the most beautiful girl, regardless who she is or what part of Boston she comes from, will be given the prize.

The BOSTON AMERICAN, inaugurated this contest to assist Andrew Mack in finding the most beautiful Celtic girl in Boston. There is a vacancy in the cast of Mr. Mack's play, "Arms-and-the-Girl," at the Park Theatre. A beautiful girl is needed to fill it. And when Mr. Mack started his search he came straight to Boston to find her, knowing well that in no city in the country are more beautiful Celtic young women to be found than in the Hub.

The young woman the committee selects as the most beautiful of all the contestants will receive a check for $100 from the BOSTON AMERICAN. Also Mr. Mack will offer her the part in his play. She can accept or decline it, as she chooses.

Only four days remain in which to submit pictures. The name and address should be written plainly on the back of each, so that the Beauty Contest Editor may be able to identify them. Pictures without names and addresses will be rejected. No pictures will be accepted after 6 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The contest is waxing warm. Girls who have not entered should do so at once. The time now is short.

CELTIC BEAUTIES IN CONTEST

TAKE SITE FOR NEW SCHOOL

The Board of Street Commissioners today made a taking for the city of 31,067 square feet of land on Ferdinand, Fayette, Melrose, Knox and Bay streets for the erection of a new schoolhouse to take the place of the old Whittredge school building on Tremont street, between Eliot and Holden streets. This building is one of the old South End landmarks.

Not long since the city was offered all the land included in to-day's taking, except 464 square feet, for the sum of $102,000.

Work on the schoolhouse will be begun as soon as the city gets title and clears the site.

NINTH VICTIM ADDED TO DEATH LIST IN CHELSEA

Stefan Okliovitch, 28 years old, the ninth victim of the collapse of a brick wall on Winnisimmet street, Chelsea, last Tuesday, is dead at the United States Marine Hospital.

Okliovitch received multiple injuries and he was also internally injured. In the hopes that his life might be saved the hospital physicians performed an operation yesterday, which did not prove successful.

The four other victims at the Marine Hospital were reported as resting comfortably today, and their complete recovery is now looked for.

At the United States Naval Hospital are confined five men who were injured by the falling wall, but all are on the road to recovery.

Frank Weymouth, inspector of buildings in Chelsea, yesterday ordered work stopped on five buildings in that city now in the process of construction. No further work will be performed on the structures until Mr. Weymouth has had opportunity to inspect them with regard to their stability.

EVELYN THAW, BROKEN DOWN, IN SANITARIUM

Her Nerves Shattered by Whirlwind Life, Forced Into Retirement by Doctors.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—At Poughkeepsie to-day Harry K. Thaw admitted the truth of the report printed in a New York paper this morning that his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, is in a sanitarium. He said:

"For some time I have urged Evelyn to take a rest cure, and I hope she will derive great benefit. She has plenty of money now, as four weeks ago I gave her a sum equal to $30 a day up to the middle of next week. She intended to obtain more for her, but being in a sanitarium, her expenses will be less, and this outlay will last longer."

Under Another Name.

Mrs. Thaw lived until two weeks ago in an apartment house up town, under the name of Mrs. Fitzgerald. It is under that cognomen that she has become a sanitarium patient. It is said the sanitarium is located in West Sixty-first street, and is a favorite resort for women whose nerves have become shattered.

In her recent appearances in public Mrs. Thaw's friends observed that she appeared to be on the verge of a breakdown. Her nerves were on edge, her face was plucked and showed traces of late hours.

Mrs. Thaw was advised by her physicians some time ago, it is said to give up the whirlwind life which held out such an allurement to her, but she persisted in going the rounds. Last week her condition became such that her doctor ordered her to be taken to the sanitarium.

Must Rest a Month.

Mrs. Thaw made strenuous objections, but her physician was inexorable. Her condition is now said to be but slightly improved. Her physician says she will have to take the rest cure for at least a month, and after that a trip to Europe with more rest and no excitement.

Inquiries at the Sixty-first street address met with no information concerning Mrs. Thaw. The superintendent would not admit that she is a patient there. Mrs. Thaw is being subjected to much the same sort of exercise that is given the patrons of Muldoon's establishment, except that there are no cross-country runs or horseback riding.

MRS. TUCKER SEEKS SHARE OF BURIED GOLD

Writes From Auburndale That She Dreamed of Mrs. Titus, the Clairvoyant.

LEBANON, N. H., Aug. 28.—Charles L. Tucker's mother has written from her home at Auburndale, Mass., to Mrs. Nellie M. Titus, the clairvoyant who is directing the search for $75,000 in gold which she declares is buried on the Peter Fredette farm here, saying that she dreamed of Mrs. Titus the night before she saw a newspaper story telling of the treasure hunt. Mrs. Tucker asks Mrs. Titus to share the treasure with her when it is found.

Search for the chest of gold, which had been delayed since Saturday on account of the illness of Mrs. Nellie M. Titus, the clairvoyant, was resumed this morning, and Mrs. Titus, accompanied by her husband and three men whom she is paying at the rate of $3 the day to do the digging, drove to the "hole in the ground" on Peter Fredette's farm and again commenced work. The excavation is now being made at one side, the mine now being twenty feet long and fifteen feet wide.

Mrs. Titus's husband, who superintends the work, declares he made a test with a long rod and was positive he struck the iron box. No spectators were admitted to the place and the gates from the main road have been locked. This was done at Mrs. Titus's request, as she said she could not get results when so many people were hanging around.

Deputy Sheriff George H. Stearns was called to the scene to assist in keeping the people away. During the past two days Mrs. Titus has been flooded with letters from all parts of the country in regard to the affair.

MAYOR APPROVES SCHOOL ARCHITECT

Mayor Hibbard to-day approved the appointment of A. W. Longfellow by the Schoolhouse Commission as architect for the new forty-room schoolhouse to be erected in the Brimmer-Winthrop district. The building will be used for grammar grades. Mr. Longfellow was architect for the Oliver Wendell Holmes School.

Some foods have the same effect on the bowels as Cascarets.

But one must select the foods and that's difficult. It's easier to take Cascarets.

Here is one way to keep cheerful:

Live out-doors and exercise in plenty. Eat coarse food, much fruit, many green vegetables.

Here is the other way:

Take a Cascaret when you need it. That will supply, in a gentle and natural way, the same laxative effect on the bowels.

Nobody questions that the first way is best.

So would it be best, for much the same reason, to do all of our reading by sunlight.

But most of us are compelled to choose a second best way.

And that way is Cascarets.

No other laxative acts so nearly as proper living would act on the bowels.

The days of castor oil and salts, of pills and cathartics, are over.

What they did artificially, is now done by Cascarets gently.

The right way is to take a Cascaret when you need it. Carry a box in your pocket. Ward off those dull feelings, those headaches, before they fairly get started.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

VOTE FOR TAFT AIDS TRUSTS, SAYS HISGEN

"Support Bryan and You Sanction Panic," Declares 3d Party Leader at St. Johnsbury.

GREETED BY BIG CROWD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Aug. 28.—Fully 1,500 people heard the issues of the campaign discussed here last night by Thomas L. Hisgen, the Independence party candidate for President, and other speakers. The size and enthusiasm of the audience was another of the surprises that the old party leaders have experienced since the campaign began in this State. The meeting was held in Court House square, and the speakers made their addresses from the band stand, amid great cheers.

Besides Mr. Hisgen, speeches were made by Former Senator Quinby S. Backus, Independence party candidate for Governor; John D. Spellman, candidate for Representative from Rutland, and Clement L. Pollock of Boston. Harry B. Daniels, who is running for State Treasurer, presided.

Mr. Hisgen's address included a recital of his fight against the Standard Oil Trust and the history of the attempt of this monopoly to drive him out of business.

He declared that this is the same monster that helps to keep the Republican party in power.

G. O. P. Allied to Trusts.

"You will find all of the trusts and corporations lined up on the side of Taft and Sherman in this election," declared Mr. Hisgen.

"If Taft is elected he will go to the White House as a trust President, with a trust man at his side as Vice-President. You may expect no relief from this combination. Vote for Taft and you indorse present conditions. Vote for Bryan and you declare in favor of the business depression of 1893. Vote for the Independence party candidates in this State on next Tuesday, and for the candidates of the same party on November, and you will register yourself in favor of a new regime where the people and not the corporations will control the government."

Mr. Backus was applauded when he recalled the fact that he was responsible for the passing of the weekly payment law in this State. He denounced the trusts.

"There is one combination of individuals in this country," he said, "which cannot only close the factories and make prices on any commodity or stocks, but can and will shut out in nearly every hamlet, village or city in the entire light. If Lake Champlain were made up entirely of concerns all outside of a certain radius where it could be transported by wagon, the prices would be changed."

Where Is Idle Man's Prosperity?

"The members of the two old parties will tell you," said the speaker, "that there is no local issues in this campaign. These men out of work is one local issue. Hold the Republican party responsible for it. It can be explained in no other way. I want to ask the men who work almost the clock for a bare subsistence in these works whether they have enjoyed any of the great prosperity of which the Republican party boasts.

"I want to call your attention to another matter of a local nature. There is no street railway in this beautiful town of 8,000 people. Why is it that the people declare that there is no chance to get away from home—that they are tied down and shut in? It is because there is a charter for this railway in the pocket of some one who is holding it for the best price he can get out of it. Who gave this man the charter? There is a plank in the platform of the Independence party which provides that the people shall vote on all questions of the granting of a charter. If the people had voted on the granting of a charter for a street railway, they would have something to say about when the road would be built, and they would not now be without any way of traveling to and from their homes.

Mr. Spellman made an eloquent appeal to voters to disregard the old parties because no longer represent the ideals of their founders, and to cast their lot with the new party, which stands for justice and equal opportunity for all.

A Medal of Honor

The National Independence party is now entering its first campaign! Its principles are sound and enduring, and it will succeed. The time will come when every person who aids the party in its first campaign will be proud of the fact that he was a CHARTER MEMBER.

To gratify such a sentiment and to obtain funds with which to advance our cause the National Committee has adopted an aluminum SOUVENIR MEDAL of the following design:

One of these medals will be mailed to every person who contributes one dollar or more to our campaign fund.

The Committee appeals to the people! Let every one in the United States who stands with us respond quickly and liberally. Give one dollar at least, and more if you can. Clubs and Committeemen should take up contributions, sending in the name of each contributor and enclosing draft, postoffice order, express order or currency. Each contribution will be promptly acknowledged, the medals will be sent immediately, and the names of contributors entered on the INDEPENDENCE ROLL OF HONOR. Address

$50,000,000 SHRINKAGE IN SAGE ESTATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Fifty million dollars of Russell Sage's estate has mysteriously disappeared—at least according to the appraisal that was filed yesterday with Surrogate Beckett—so that the State of New York may get its income tax on an appraisal of a little more than $34,000,000.

Just where it has gone is a mystery of more than usual interest to Wall Street.

It is positively stated by those who were most intimate with the late millionaire that his estate was worth over $115,000,000, little less than twice the amount at which it has been appraised for taxing purposes. A theory, advanced by those familiar with the Sage estate, is that the values upon the securities and other taxable things is woefully low.

There was died with Surrogate Beckett yesterday the report of Charles F. Dillon, who was appointed by the Court to appraise the estate. This report states that the whole taxable value was but $84,353,-940.91, and that of this sum Mrs. Sage, the widow, gets $63,778,800.91, the balance, $450,000, going to the twenty-nine lesser legatees.

This means that the State of New York will get a total of $867,538.01. Mrs. Sage paying the bulk of it, or $635,038.01, and the twenty-nine other legatees the small difference. Surrogate Beckett during the afternoon affirmed the report, but the question that Wall Street asked when the news of the appraisal was flashed over the wires was:

"What has become of the other half of the estate?"

PLAN POPE PIUS'S BEATIFICATION

ROME, Aug. 28.—Rev. D. J. McMackin of New York has been appointed postulator in the process of the beatification of Pope Pius IX. This means that Father McMackin will make researches and examine documents in America regarding Pope Pius in connection with his beatification. Cardinal Cretoni has received a mysterious intimation to suspend the process of beatification from a man named Falconieri, who claims to be the heir to properties fraudulently subtracted from his family by Pope Pius IX. This action, Falconieri alleges, shows that Pius IX. did not possess the virtues necessary for beatification.

LIVERMORE'S COTTON LOSS TWO MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Jesse L. Livermore's attempt to make himself the cotton king were abandoned definitely yesterday, when the price of August options were crashing $3.35 a bale, dragging other options down a dollar or more.

Livermore is said to have lost fully two millions of the profits he had piled up in his remarkable campaign. The young man preserve absolute silence, and his brokers, E. F. Hutton & Co., refuse to discuss his affairs further than there was evidence yesterday that the campaign was ended.

With Livermore in this attempt to corner cotton were at first Theodore H. Price and a group of professional traders. Price issued circulars telling of the high prices expected, and it seems that Livermore did most of the buying.

Cotton was accumulated by the clique in thousand bale lots, until it was reported that they had among them contracts calling for 1 in October for 45 least 400,000 bales, worth $20,000,000.

SARDINE INDUSTRY BOOMS; PACKERS SEE BIG SEASON

EASTPORT, Me., Aug. 28.—The large number of Eastport people who each year go to other parts of the State to find occupation in the Summer resort business have begun to return with the appearance of cool weather, and the sardine industry, upon which many depend for a livelihood during the Fall, Winter and Spring months, has entered upon its season.

Present indications point to a successful season, most of the packers having received material for a good start in the appearance of large numbers of herring such as are used for sardines.

NAHANT WOMAN DROWNS SELF

Stealing from her bed in the early hours of the morning, Mrs. Alice Flinn of Nahant committed suicide by drowning herself in the ocean. Her body was found some two hours later by Joseph Bass of the United States Life-Saving Station, Nahant, in a cove near the Chadwick estate, of which her husband is overseer.

Nervous affections are declared by Medical Examiner Pinkham to have probably been the cause of her suicide.

Mrs. Flinn came home to the lodge occupied by herself, husband and fifteen-year-old daughter on the A. J. Chamberlain estate from the Massachusetts General Hospital last Monday. She was still suffering from acute nervousness. She was forty-seven years old.

The Girl That Is a Born Leader and Her Future

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DOWN at the seashore, where I am staying, there is a slim, black-haired, black-eyed witch of a girl fourteen years of age. She is a born leader, and every child in the hotel is absolutely at her command.

She leavens the entire group of rather ordinary children. Sometimes she holds them spellbound by some wonderful tale which she makes up as she goes along; sometimes she leads them into mischief that brings punishment to all.

She is at once the despair and comfort of every mother in the hotel, for she can amuse a peevish child when both mother and nurse fail.

The children all follow blindly just wherever it pleases Katherine to lead them. Fortunately her nature is a sweet one, and so she does not abuse her power.

I often look at her and wonder what effect her leadership will have on her character as she grows older. It may make of her a level-minded, splendid woman, or it may make her dictatorial and domineering.

The Danger in Having Power

There are few of us without power of some kind, and a good many of us abuse that power.

It is easy to step into ways of commanding others, and from that the next step is forgetting the rights and privileges of others.

A little power sometimes changes an ordinarily pleasant person into a tyrant. I know one case where a girl lived in very humble circumstances until she married a rich man. She had been a very gentle, nice sort of a girl, but when she married and had plenty of servants, she treated them abominably. She simply could not stand the access of power.

If you happen to be a leader among the people with whom you are thrown, use your power mercifully. Nature has given you a strong personality, with the ability to sway others to your stronger will.

You have a great opportunity to influence them for good, also an opportunity to influence them for evil; and you, not they, will be responsible for the direction to which they are swayed.

Stand for the Good and Pure

Perhaps you are a girl in a large department store or factory, and the other girls look up to you for advice or counsel. Or perhaps you are one of a large family, and the other members look up to you.

In either case you must stand firm for all that is good and pure. You must not destroy their admiration and faith in you.

Remember that they will strive to emulate you in all things. If you disappoint them they will be sorely disillusioned, for you are their ideal of all that is fine and good.

Among you girl associates you must keep the standard of goodness pure and unblemished. It would be horrible to feel that your strong will had led some weaker sister into ways that brought her harm.

Be a leader if nature has given you that power, but let your leadership be such that all who come in contact with you may be the better for your friendship.

My dear, they's goin' to be a war.
Us girls has all combined an' swore
Regardin' dogs we'd scorn the lawr,
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

My flea-hound ain't no common pet,
An' they won't muzzle him, you bet,
Ner stick him 'neath a wire net,
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

'Twould be a positive disgrace
Unmuzzlin' him in every place
To kiss his pretty little face,
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

'Nough to make a dog turn pale;
Fer when he tries to bite his tail
He knows, before he starts, he'll fail.
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

AIN'T IT AWFUL, MABEL? — By JOHN E. HAZZARD (Author of the Original Verses)

He Was Wise; Likewise Had an Axe to Grind

By KENNETT HARRIS

"WHAT you need with that young, growing family of yours is a cow," observed the Sage of the Suburb. "A cow's what you want."

"What would I want with a cow?" asked the Fifty Foot Frontier.

"A cow has many uses," explained the Sage of the Suburb. "From her hide we make leather for boots and shoes and alligator travelling bags; her horns we fashion into knife handles, tortoise-shell back combs, musical instruments and pipes for sailors; from her blood we make puddings that are highly esteemed by people who like them; her hair imparts cohesiveness to the plaster on our walls, and her tail to make delicious calves-foot jelly, or glue, according to the process employed, to say nothing of the bones, which have various uses, ranging from fertiliser to piano keys."

"Which is the more useful animal, the cow or the horse?" inquired the Fifty Foot Frontier. "You remind me of a village debating society," he added.

"Inasmuch as I am a highly improving influence, I presume," said the Sage of the Suburb, complacently. "I might also mention that the cow imparts, under gentle pressure, an opaque white fluid, composed of albuminoids, sugar, phosphates and water, which is secreted in the mammary glands.

"It is known as milk and may be used either as a beverage or in the composition of angel food, or, coagulated, it is manufactured into the article of commerce called cheese. The scum skimmed from the surface, or separated by centrifugal motion, makes a very fair imitation of buttering. It is owing to the fact your children might appreciate milk."

Lesson in Interior Decoration

"They do," said the Fifty Foot Frontier. "We get it regularly from the milkman. He sells ten quart tickets for a dollar. I've used it for years in the family."

"Pardon me; you think that you have," corrected the Sage of the Suburb. "In reality you are imperfectly assimilating a calcareous mixture that is rapidly freezing your interiors and paving the way for future disorders of the system."

"I've not much on arts and crafts," said the Fifty Foot Frontier, "but I'll be willing to bet that you can't use the same material for paving sidewalks and fences we do. You think that I want a cow, do you?"

"I think that you need one," said the Sage of the Suburb. "You don't know what a comfort a cow can be till you keep one. You can't conceive the luxury of an abundant supply of fresh, pure, wholesome, sure-enough milk and cream, until you have enjoyed it.

"You don't have to purchase tickets for a scanty, watered measure of stuff that, even if it has had a milky foundation, has been so contaminated, germinated and inoculated that it is fatally unfit for human consumption by the time that it reaches you.

"With a cow you get milk—milk fresh from Ma-ma's four-bottle pick, sustaining, invigorating, liquid that makes the calf frisk and kick up its heels in a way that is exuberant joy. I think your children are entitled to the pale ale lately."

"I've fancied it myself," said the Fifty Foot Frontier, confidentially, "but you don't think that it can be the milk-man's milk?"

"Not by 50 to 1-an-it," said the Sage of the Suburb, confidently. "Positively you think that it's what it is. If you want to see how much milk and cream you are getting you get them a cow. It would do you good, too, if you'd form the habit of churning it. Then think of the pancakes that you could have with the fresh cream."

"You take those cakes with some good maple syrup and butter—that's another thing. I don't see that there would be anything to prevent you making your own butter. All you will need besides the cow is a churn."

"What does the cow do?" asked the Fifty Foot Frontier. "I've heard of dogs churning, but I didn't suppose that a cow would be intelligent enough."

"She furnishes the cream," said the Sage.

"But not the maple syrup? That's extra?"

"You're a bigger idiot than you can help," said the Sage. "I'm talking seriously now. I'm sure that your wife would have all the advantages that I have mentioned, and unfortunately she would have milk for drinking, milk for cooking purposes, and cream for all the year round. You would restore your poor children to health and vigor, and save half the cost of living, after the initial expense of purchase.

"The cost of feeding is very little, and you can milk her yourself any time that it's convenient for you to think it over, and talk it over with your wife. She's a sensible woman, and she'll tell you what I'm right."

"Well," said the Fifty Foot Frontier, as his visitor turned to leave, "I'll think it over. By the way,

BUILDING BIG SHIP FOR FETE AT WONDERLAND

Five Hundred Pretty Girls to Take Part in "Alice in Wonderland."

FREE AMERICAN COUPONS

Work on the big two-masted ship over the circus ring at Wonderland Park is begun in preparation for the "Alice in Wonderland" show, which begins next Monday evening at 8:30 and continues until the close of the season, Sept. 20.

"Alice in Wonderland" will include the Bears, Rabbits, Mock Turtle, Jabberwock and all the fanciful creatures celebrated in the book, and besides, there will be half a hundred beautiful young dancers, girls selected from all over Greater Boston, in special songs and dances.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club will see the production on Monday and Tuesday of next week, when they go to the park with free tickets clipped from next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN, giving them fifty cents' worth of free park amusement.

The free tickets are for admission to the park and the Mammoth Circus, a twenty-five-cent admission to the Wild West Show for a ticket and ten cents, and two rides each on the Velvet Coaster, the Miniature Railway and the Merry-go-Round for a ticket and five cents.

Meanwhile Sadie Knowlton, continuing her engagement at Wonderland, is every afternoon and evening riding down a seventy-five-foot run and diving over the backdrops of her bicycle a distance of eighty feet, into a small tank of water four feet deep. Miss Knowlton has been a bicycle rider, winner of century runs and spectacular performer for years, but this is her biggest stunt, and she says she cannot swim a stroke, which makes it necessary for the attendants to fish her out of the tank at every performance.

Order the SUNDAY AMERICAN to-day to make sure of free tickets next Sunday.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE FUN VILLAGE AT PARAGON PARK

Members of the Sunday American Outing Club will notice that ten free tickets for Paragon Park attractions are to be published in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN for use on the following Monday and Tuesday.

They are for admission to the park, the Merry Widow House and the Merry-go-Round, a fifteen-cent seat in the Lowande Circus for five cents and a coupon, rides on the Circle Swing and through "Mexico" for five cents and a free ticket each; the same terms at the Olympic Theatre, Athletic Farm and Human Laundry, and two rides for a ticket on the Roller Coaster. This is the greatest string of free tickets yet, and is only sixty-five cents.

Visitors to Paragon Park find among the scores or more of great park shows a thoroughly up-to-date round of park entertainments, while the Palm Garden is a surpassing excellence and beauty.

Meanwhile the extraordinary stunt of Professor K. F. Speedy in diving down through the air 125 feet at a small tank is amazing spectators.

SECOND DIVISION OF OUTING CLUB AT CANOBIE LAKE TO-DAY

Order the SUNDAY AMERICAN to-day and make sure of the twenty-five cents' worth of free park tickets to Canobie Lake Park for use next Monday and Friday.

To-day the second division of SUNDAY AMERICAN guests are having the time of their lives at the park. Next week will be the last of the season.

The tickets are good for a seat in the big Japanese Theatre, the House of Mirth, Laughing Gallery and the Coaster. Park admission is free, and the big, fine cars take passengers right into the park from all surrounding cities and towns.

Canobie Lake Park has outdone herself this year, eclipsing all records for wonderful entertainment, and the management is preparing new wonders for the season of 1909.

TAKE THE CHILDREN FOR AN EXCURSION TO VANITY FAIR

At Vanity Fair, Rhode Island's greatest enclosed Summer park, several big new acts are booked for next week. Excursions are run there nearly every day.

Yesterday the second division of the Sunday American Outing Club visited Vanity Fair in great numbers while to-morrow is Children's day when little folks under ten years will receive valuable prizes and a souvenir from the management upon presenting a SUNDAY AMERICAN free ticket.

Another big park illumination is held to-night rivaling in effectiveness that of last Tuesday evening.

Sixty cents' worth of free tickets will be published in the SUNDAY AMERICAN for free park fun next week, and the Outing Club members should order the paper now and make sure of the coupons. They will be for use on Monday, park admission and the funny Human Laundry. There are for Thursday, including admission to the park, to see Great Bijou Theatre and the Devil's Workshop, where wondrous performances are put on afternoon and evening by Omar Saul, the park magician. The regular Saturday children's ticket will be included in the list of Sunday coupons.

A NEW 'MERRY WIDOW' TO DELIGHT HUB AUDIENCES

Miss Lina Abarbanell, Viennese star who takes "Merry Widow" role at the Tremont.

MISS LINA ABARBANELL TO APPEAR IN ROLE IN PLACE OF MISS DALE.

There is a new "Merry Widow" in town, in New York as Hanneli, in "Hanneli and Gretli," she is a Viennese girl and a personal friend of Franz Lehar, who composed "The Merry Widow" score. He wished her to be the original in the role, but she was induced to come to America by Herr Conreid before it was produced.

The new "Merry Widow" is Miss Lina Abarbanell, who sang the role all last season in New York or Chicago, and was selected from more than 300 European prima donnas to sing the principal role in this remarkable opera before the Emperor of Austria.

She sang in Boston two years ago when Mr. Savage produced "The Student King" at the Tremont, and she scored a marked success in the Metropolitan Opera House

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN THAN THIS." How General Ward well rescued his leper wife, fled with her to the desert, tried to contract the loathsome disease himself, and the pitiful end of the tragic romance. All told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

PAPA MALONEY BARS HELEN'S WEDDING PLAN

Holds Annulment of Osborne Marriage to Stop Union with Clarkson.

PAIR IN BITTER QUARREL

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—To prevent the marriage of Helen Maloney and Samuel B. Clarkson, the young man with whom the Philadelphia heiress eloped, although her father have succeeded in preventing the signing of the interlocutory decree of annulment granted in the case of her marriage to Arthur Herbert Osborne.

Justice Bischoff, in the Supreme Court, had placed the case on the calendar, but when it was called and he was ready to sign the papers that would forever free her from Osborne and make her eligible to become the wife of the young Englishman, A. L. Humes, the Maloney attorney, asked for an adjournment of the case.

This action was taken after a visit of Martin Maloney, the father of the girl, to the attorneys. The visit followed a bitter quarrel with the daughter, who had declared her intention of becoming the wife of Clarkson at the earliest opportunity, despite her father's wishes and demands that she wait until the ecclesiastical court before which her case is to come had given its judgment.

"You shall not marry until the church says you have the right to marry," he is alleged to have said, "and then you will be married in the church as you should be."

"I will marry just as soon as my marriage to Osborne is annulled. As soon as the decree is signed," she replied, "I shall cannot be married in the church I will be married by a Protestant minister or a justice of the peace."

The result was the decision of the father to prevent the marriage by postponing the signing of the decree, and this was done by action of the court. The attorneys of young Osborne were a party to the agreement.

PARK AS GUESTS OF THE AMERICAN VISIT LEXINGTON

In the rush for SUNDAY AMERICANS your dealer may run out early and it would be well to order the paper to-day and make sure of the Lexington Park free ticket of admission to be published next Sunday.

The free ticket to Lexington Park is for admission at the gate, past which cars run from Sullivan square and through Cambridge. Lexington Park is one of the famous beauty spots most visited by family parties and others in search of healthful recreation.

The great menagerie containg fifty rare animals from all over the world, the Rustic Theatre and its Summer plays, swings, bailfield, picnic tables and rustic benches are on every hand.

When you apply for a position in his grand opera chorus his medical voice expert examines your complicated singing apparatus and gives you a chart, showing what physical defects, if any, must be remedied and guarded against during your future career—and the operatic director says, "It means a revolution for the benefit of all young singers." See the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

"COMMENCEMENT DAYS" PRESENTED

The first performance on any stage of "Commencement Days," the new play of college girl life which will open an extended engagement at the Colonial Theatre next Monday, was given at the Prick Lyceum at Redbank, N. J., last night. For dramatic entertainment, the production is unusually extensive and elaborate, and the mechanical detail is strikingly thorough and correct. The drama itself, dealing with life at a woman's college, is exceedingly well played.

Daniel Webster.

DESCENDED from a stern unbending race of Puritan Pioneers and Indian fighters, this colossal personality ("With eyes of power and Jove's own brow") was born in the village of Franklin, N. J., where his father kept a roadside tavern, and where his intellectual development began.

The principles of "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable," so eloquently enunciated by him, in after years nerved the arm of Lincoln, flashed from the blades of Sheridan, and glinted from the bayonets of Grant

And some of his most memorable orations were delivered in taverns and at public banquets, where the delicious juices of the barley fields gurgled cool and invitingly from a thousand bottles; filled every bumper glass, and delighted his own palate; developing within him, force and energy, intellect, eloquence, mind and soul.

Beals C. Wright, of the Longwood Cricket Club of Boston, won from F. B. Alexander in three straight sets by a score of 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

Wright's superior generalship in serving and placing his returns was responsible for Alexander's defeat.

To-morrow Wright and Larned will cross rackets in the Challenge match for the cup.

LEACH CROSS, WHO CLASHES WITH MURPHY ON SEPTEMBER 2

STANLEY KETCHEL IS A SELF-MADE CHAMPION

By TAD.

All the world seems to be talking of Stanley Ketchel at the present time. The Montana terror has the East, West and Middle States crazy with enthusiasm. He is declared to be the best fighter in the world by Prince enthusiasts, and Abe Attell declared after the Thomas fight that Ketchel was unbeatable. Also agreeable in his style, saying that he could hit from any position and with terrific force.

Ketchel has knocked out every man he has fought since the memorable battle with Joe Thomas at Marysville, two years ago, and now promoters are scenting the riches of the world for new victims to be added to the great fighter's list. Ketchel deserves the art of fighting. He had to. Thomas is said by other eight before the fight with a little trick. When he entered the ring the Montana man wore an ebonite bandage over his right elbow which caused Thomas's eyes to stick out. Joe thought it a few minutes and then when they went to the center under an awful hook found the extra upholstery. That arm is as rigid, Ketchel said Ketchel, with a smile, "It was only kidding you. I'll show you how good I is after the first round," said he did.

In the East little is known of Ketchel. He jumped to the front so rapidly that we hardly had a chance to follow him.

W. W. Naughton, in writing of his early history, says:

"The story of Ketchel's life before he entered the ring and since is a picturesque one. To begin at the time he conquered the admiration of California sports, he was little better than a young hoodlum. Then he was given a chance to box Joe Thomas, at Marysville a year ago last Fourth of July. When he arrived at Marysville some one asked, 'Where is your trainer?'

"'Trainer?' gasped Ketchel. 'I am lucky to be here myself.'

"He had no trainer and no pounding bags or equipment, and as he himself tells it, 'was never properly fed for all he knew to the contrary, the staple diet of the American nation was coffee and doughnuts.'

He trained in the back yard of a saloon, and he found for sparring partner another kitten of the pugilistic arena who was in poor circumstances as himself. He could punch in those days, for the partner, writing to a friend in San Francisco, said he would leave the job, only he had no getaway money.

Ketchel first enjoyed the comforts of training when he prepared for his second fight with Joe Thomas at Colma. By that time Joe O'Connor, an old acquaintance in Butte, took hold of him, and under O'Connor's guidance Ketchel has risen to fame in a way that has eclipsed everything in the line of prize ring successes in the ken of present day sports. There will be arguments, of course, as to whether he is as much of a scientific as Jeffries, or Fitzsimmons, or Jack Dempsey, or who not, but if a vote were taken among sporting men right now, in all probability Al Kaufman's assertion that Ketchel is the greatest fighter the world has known would be unanimously adopted. Ketchel is a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., his father being German and his mother an American of Polish descent. He takes his physique from his mother. He started in a comparatively small man.

A remarkable thing in this connection is that Ketchel's mother is only fourteen years older than her famous son.

As a youngster of seventeen, Ketchel was a roustabout on the lake steamers running between Grand Rapids and Milwaukee. He made his way to Butte—he had no money—and for a number of years he was in the saddle ranges. He was in the saddle ranges. He evidently lost and still has his spurs. He evidently lost and still has his spurs. He evidently lost a big fortune and drifted away in his trunk.

Later he became a bellboy in a Butte hotel. It was there that he imbibed the notion of becoming a prize fighter. Jimmie A. H. Son of Leland Stanford and Palm Beach; John Shlupen of East Hampton and George Sperling of Bridgeport, who made a remarkable score in last year's intercollegiate tournament. GOOD SCORES ARE MADE ON THE MYOPIA LINKS

MYOPIA GOLF LINKS, Hamilton, Aug. 28.—Conditions for the second and last day of the national open golf championship was much more favorable than yesterday, but the professionals were mile rounds, cannot be recalled by Myopians. It was the first competition in which many of the "pros" have played since last Fall, being their first event of the season many of them are as susceptible to outside influences as amateurs.

The field was cut more than a third this morning by the rule that those fifteen strokes higher than tenth place must fall out at the end of the first day. No such wholesale weeding out has ever occurred before. It barred two or three who unquestionably would have been close to the money if not in it, but as the rules were as fair for one as another and such weather conditions are not likely to be duplicated again in the midsummer event for years, the change is approved as stand. Among the professionals unexpectedly barred from further play were George Turnbull, formerly of the Highland Club, Jamaica; A. H. Son of Leland Springs and Palm Beach; John Shlupen of East Hampton and George Sperling of Bridgeport, who made a remarkable score in last year's intercollegiate tournament. Those Wash Sales and Other Wall Street Frauds

One Little ACID TEST Might Be Put on Them

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Occasionally the little game of swindling the public which is carried on in Wall Street attracts attention.

Recently, stocks have been sold tens of thousands of shares at a time. There was always APPARENT BUYING for this enormous APPARENT SELLING. The stocks were sold back and forth, the sales running above a million shares, and more than three-quarters of the sales being confined to eleven different stocks.

A blind goose, if you talked to him for three minutes about Wall Street, would know that these transactions must have been fraudulent. The prices did not vary, the sales were simply made for reasons best known to the fraudulent manipulators. AND THE BROKERS THAT CARRIED ON THESE SALES WERE SWINDLERS UPON THE PUBLIC, OF COURSE. There is talk now of investigation by the Stock Exchange, and of punishment. But when things are done on as big a scale as that, BIG MEN ARE INVOLVED. And when big men are involved, the authorities of the Stock Exchange are apt to do about as much as little office boys do when their employers get tipsy. They do nothing, and keep quiet.

The public, as it happens, has some interest in this Wall Street matter, quite apart from the question of Wall Street gambling. These enormous stock transactions are all supposed to pay a stamp tax.

Who SELLS the stamps, how MANY are sold, WHO COMPARES THE STOCK TRANSACTIONS OF EACH DAY, AND WEEK, AND MONTH, AND YEAR, WITH THE STAMPS SOLD BY THE STATE? Wouldn't it be possible to investigate through the sale of stamps, and find out something in that way?

When men start in "washing" sales on the Stock Exchange, when they start in to swindle the public, it may be that they put stamps on all of those fraudulent transactions, and kindly contribute to the public purse that amount of money. But we doubt it. There is no bona fide SALE in a "wash" transaction. IS THERE A BONA FIDE TAX STAMP ON THAT TRANSACTION? It ought to be somebody's business to find that out—and Governor Hughes, we should think, would be the man, as he is responsible for the State's administrative and executive work.

He got very much excited about gambling on the race tracks, and he did good work when he interfered with that. It might be worth his while to investigate the peculiarly bad kind of gambling with stacked cards that has been going on in Wall Street lately.

The gentlemen, of course, carry on these wash sales to hold up prices, to give a fictitious value to and create a fictitious demand for their stocks. And when they sell fraudulently fifty or a hundred thousand shares of a stock, the little, ignorant lamb comes in and buys his four or five hundred shares, AND THAT'S THE PROFIT THAT THEY WORK FOR. It ought to be somebody's business to investigate. It is bad enough to have Wall Street, a licensed gambling institution above all the laws. There is no particular reason why it should also be licensed to run a FRAUDULENT gambling institution.

That "Personal Liberty League"

It Should Be Encouraged—But on the Right Lines

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Race track gambling being crippled and soon to end in New York State, as it has ended elsewhere, a league has been formed by some of the "gentlemen," bookmakers, blacklegs, pickpockets and all-around rascals, whose profits are threatened or ended.

These "gentlemen" talk about personal liberty, and they have succeeded in getting some "distinguished names" to be used in their league —names of individuals about as "distinguished" as the blackleg that acts as a "capper" for the criminal bookmaker.

It is a fine assortment of humanity, this "personal liberty" crowd, and it is very amusing when it talks about being a factor in the New York State election.

It would be no more strange if the gentlemen in charge of the Star of Hope, a newspaper published by convicts in the Penitentiary, should expect to influence public opinion largely through their editorial columns.

We do not think that the personal liberty league will make Presidents or Governors, and we don't think the blackleg collection of "personal liberty" gentlemen will hold together very long. But we do believe that, to a certain extent, these gentlemen should be encouraged. They should be encouraged to demand and to acquire personal liberty FOR THEMSELVES.

For instance, if these gentlemen INDIVIDUALLY want to be thieves, pickpockets, robbers of their employers, they have the personal liberty to do so—subject, of course, to the right of the people to lock them up.

These men have the personal right to do what they please, subject to the laws, but THEY HAVEN'T ANY RIGHT TO MAKE CRIMINALS OF OTHERS.

The "Gentlemen of the Jockey Club" have personal liberty to race their horses one against the other, if the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals does not interfere in the case of horses too young or overworked. But those "Jockey Club Gentlemen" have no right whatever to make demoralized clerks and cheated employers and cheated mothers and children pay for their sport. They have the personal liberty to race if they want to, but they should be compelled to pay for their own racing, and they will be compelled hereafter.

The bookmaker gentleman has the personal liberty to get drunk, and occasionally to have his murder in a hansom cab, and to smoke his opium, if that is his habit, or otherwise to enjoy himself, subject to criminal law.

But he hasn't any right to maintain a public nuisance, to encourage boys to gamble, to rob them, to start them on the hansom cab murder path and the opium joint path. The vicious man may smoke opium; he may not run an opium den, he may not run a gambling den.

Personal liberty is a very good thing. It means the right of a man to do as he chooses as long as he does not interfere with others or offend the laws of the country.

But men that talk of personal liberty, and try to associate with it the right to manufacture thieves and criminals, to maintain a disorderly resort in defiance of the Constitution and of public decency, are ridiculous, to put it mildly.

That personal liberty league, made up largely of the blood-suckers that hang around the race track, will probably have plenty of personal liberty before long. It will be completely out of a job; the race track snake upon which it has been living has had its back broken, and will not live on stolen money much longer. Many of the race track gentry will be at personal liberty to start personal liberty clubs and attend to them exclusively. They must allow us, however, to point out politely the difference between to do as they please, subject to law, and the license to rob others, or teach others to rob, regardless of law.

A New Thought Rosary

String the Jewels of the Mind Into Charms Against Unhappiness, Illness or Failure

ONE of the oldest and sweetest customs among religious denominations is the telling of the beads of the rosary. The Buddhists, the Mohammedans and the Roman Catholics have preserved this custom, whose origin cannot be traced so remote is it.

There is something poetic and beautiful about it. Without question the habit has been helpful in bringing the minds of religious devotees under control, and developing the power of concentration.

New Thought, which takes its central ideas of the unity of life and the divinity within from the oldest religious known to history, can be made still more potent by the introduction of the rosary idea.

No beads are necessary; written phrases will serve the purpose; and let each earnest soul, seeking to find the light and to develop the latent powers within, provide its own rosary.

Rosary for Cheerfulness

ARE you discouraged and given to melancholy and nervous moods? Do you feel that everything goes against you, and that the future holds nothing but sorrow for you?

Then let this be your rosary. Write down the phrases and put them where you can see them as you sit alone, for your moments of concentration. "String your beads" of these sentences:

I am peace absolute.
I am serenity.
I am happiness absolute.
Life holds nothing but good for me.
I am realizing all my heart's desires.

After you have learned the words by heart, you will not need the written rosary; it will become a part of your thoughts.

You will say your rosary over as you walk on the street, or sit in public conveyances, or drive in your carriage, or lie in your bed; and you will find such strength and power coming to you as you never dreamed of possessing.

Rosary for Good Health

IF you are worried about your health, or about your financial condition, add new beads to the rosary and say:

Perfect health is mine.
Plenty is mine.
Prosperity is mine.
Opulence is mine, and the wisdom to use it wisely.
Everything I do succeeds, and I am filled with vitality and strength.

Familiarize yourself with these words, and make the rosary a part of your daily mental and spiritual exercises.

A worried and despondent business man who believed he was born to misfortune acceded to the wish of a friend and carried the rosary she wrote for him in the lining of his hat, reading it over whenever he felt the despondent mood approaching.

After a time his nerves were less tensely strung; he was calmer and more philosophical. That was all.

Then came a complete business failure, and he said to his friend: "You see the rosary did not work. I am born for failure."

Rosary for Success

BUT right after the failure came the best fortune of his whole life, and it came through the failure, just as the erection of a fine marble building waits upon the destruction of a cheap, wooden structure oftentimes.

Health, happiness, success and power have come to many lives through the repetition of one of these New Thought rosaries. String one for yourself of such mental qualities as you crave, and such possessions as you need for your happiness and usefulness. You will be surprised at the result if you are faithful.

"The explanation is perfectly logical and natural. You simply bring the vibrations of your mind to chord with those of universal good. You cease to make a discord in the mental and spiritual realm.

The cells of your brain undergo a physical transformation by your change of thoughts; and "As a man thinketh, so is he" proves to be literal fact, as well as a divine assertion.

Rosary for Love

IF you feel the romance of your domestic life fading, if love seems to be dying in your home, make yourself a rosary to help bring the happiness which is the earthly vestibule to heaven.

Proclaim love, compatibility, sympathy, romance and constancy as your own. Assert that you love, and are loved, as in the days of your honeymoon, and shut your heart, eyes and ears to any other belief.

The New Thought rosary has been known to carry the Cupid back to the hearth which he was on the eve of deserting.

Surely it is worth the effort of a trial.
